AND TENURE AND OVEROROWDING In our last article it was suggested that the olution of the overcrowding question was largely connected with the system of land tenure obtain. ing here, and thut greater facilities for the parchase of land would luduce building, and consequently less concestion in portions of the City. It was also pointed out, on indispulable gridence, that overerowding does exist to an alarming extent in Viotoria, and that no laws can regulate this, if the accommodation does not brist We now propose to show the conditions on which hand has hitherto been leased by
